Canadian Prescription Drug Sales

Americans can buy prescription drugs in Canada for personal use. It is the purchaser's responsibility to know whether the drug purchase violates the laws of the United States. Narcotics and controlled substances can not be shipped across the border.

Though no insurance is accepted in Canada, some buyers may submit their receipts for reimbursement, as applicable.

All drugs for sale in Canada must pass safety and quality standards established by the Canadian Government. Drugs for sale in Canada are not regulated by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and may not be approved by the FDA.

Canadian pharmacies fill prescriptions only from Canadian doctors. If you go to Canada, a doctor will see you in person, then co-sign and rewrite your U.S. doctor's prescription. If you order by mail or fax, a Canadian doctor will likely phone your physician to verify the prescription prior to co-signing and rewriting. There is usually a charge for this service.

Canadian pharmacies may accept and encourage a 90-day prescription with three refills. This allows the Canadian pharmacy to refill three times by mail, fax, or e-mail request. When medications are shipped, the regular deliver cost is $6-$10 (5-7 day delivery) and express mail about $20 (overnight).

Not every U.S. medication is available and sometimes there is little savings. Compare the Canadian price with the U.S. cost before purchasing.
